

Dear Chairman Powell,

True conservatives worry about concentrations of power, whether in governmental or private hands. As William Safire has noted, your headlong rush to allow huge corporate media owners to concentrate their power further is ill advised and will be harmful to the public interest. FCC Commissioners, like other government officials, owe a duty to heed the wishes of the public. The current rules on ownership should be retained.